9:30pm: 19 years. how do you put into words what 19 years being a part of something means? should i write about that one time at camp where we stayed up all night to scare off the bears? or do i write something sentimental about how i wish i lived closer to home so i could come out to scouts more often? or maybe i should just submit a bunch of pictures and hope that they can pull some meaning from it? geez. 19 years. where do you begin? what do you even say? happy 35 years truong son? thanks for teaching me about knots and stuff? thanks for the memories? i made a lot of friends? Thanks for giving me a place to always come back too? nah. too mushy.
